- ### Imbalance of Power Examples
- Examples include but are not limited to:
- An older student aggresses towards a younger student.
 - A student who is more “popular” and has more social and cultural capital aggresses towards a students who is less “popular”.
 - A group of students aggress towards an individual student.
 - A student or group of students aggress towards a student or group of students who cannot protect themselves due to a disability, lack of resources, or limited social support.
 - Electronically – A student posts an embarrassing picture via social media without a person’s knowledge, consent, or awareness.

7

Determining a Repeated Pattern:

Repetition refers to the frequency with which an individual is subject to bullying. While there is currently no rule of thumb related to a specific timeframe with which aggression must occur to be considered bullying, a few factors should be considered:

- Repetition does NOT have to be the same topography* of bullying
- Repetition does NOT have to include the same aggressor, group of aggressors, victim, or group of victims (i.e., An aggressor can bully more than one student, A victim can be victimized by more than one aggressor)
- Repetition does NOT have to occur within the same environment

In addition to the above points, the fear or likelihood of repetition should be considered, including the stability of environmental, social, academic, and prevention conditions. In other words, if these conditions remain stable following the initial bullying experience, the likelihood of repetition increases.

Topography of bullying means how the bullying looks or the form, e.g. physical aggression, verbal aggression, cyberbullying, etc.

8

Repetition Examples

- A group of students target an individual student before school by selecting one member of the group to throw a ball at his head and laugh as he attempts to dodge. Every day a different member of the group takes a turn.
- A student shoulder checks a younger student on Monday; calls a student with a disability a derogatory name on Tuesday; and on Wednesday pushes another student out of their seat on the bus.
- A student calls a girl in her class a racial slur; on another occasion, she pushes this same girl into a locker. Later that week, she makes sure that all of the girls in the class ignore her.
- Electronically - A student posts hateful comments about a peer on social media. After this same student gets caught, she continues to post anonymously and encourages others to post hateful comments towards this same peer.

9

Intent Definition & Examples

Bullying is a proactive form of aggression that is grounded in the intent to cause physical, emotional, or social harm. Therefore, bullying, as a form of aggression, is purposeful on the part of the aggressor.

Examples of Intent:

- An older student exclaims to his peer group, "Watch This!", and walks over to a younger student, pushes him to the ground, and laughs.
- A group of students begin calling another student by a derogatory nickname, even though this student expresses his displeasure.
- A group of students act like one of their peers is invisible, and encourage everyone else in the class to do the same.
- Electronically – A student posts a compromising picture of a peer on social media with a caption that is extremely hurtful.

10

Types of Bullying

Physical Bullying involves the use of physical force (e.g., hitting, kicking, slapping, tripping, spitting) to victimize an individual or group of students.

Verbal Bullying involves oral or written communication that causes harm to the victim including taunting, name calling, threats, offensive language or notes, and hand derogatory hand gestures.

Relational Bullying (or social bullying) involves behaviors designed to socially exclude or damage the reputation of the victim, including rumor spreading, social isolation, ignoring, and encouraging others to defriend the individual.

Cyberbullying involves behaviors with the intent of harming an individual through electronic means (e.g., social media, text message, gaming, mobile applications), including rumor spreading, posting compromising pictures, name calling, and encouragement of social exclusion.

Damage to Property involves an aggressor intentionally damaging or stealing an individual's property with the intent of causing harm.

Outcomes

Psychosomatic outcomes can include physical illness and symptoms, sleep disturbances.

Psychosocial outcomes can include depression, anxiety, low self-esteem, stress, suicidal attempts and ideation.

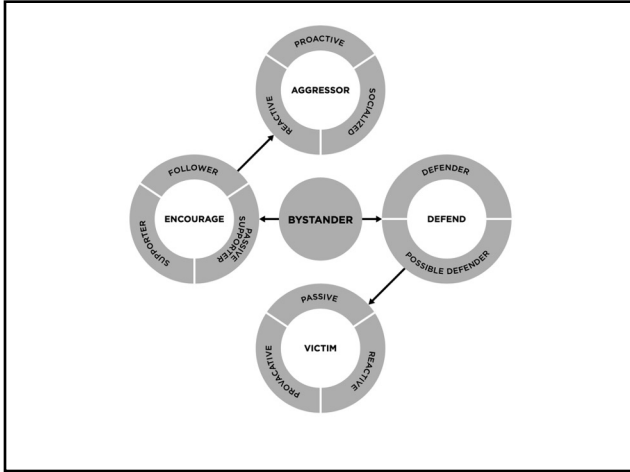

Behavioral outcomes can include internalizing and externalizing behavioral problems and patterns.

Social outcomes can include peer rejection, trouble resolving peer conflict, social and communication skill deficits, increased levels of delinquent behaviors.

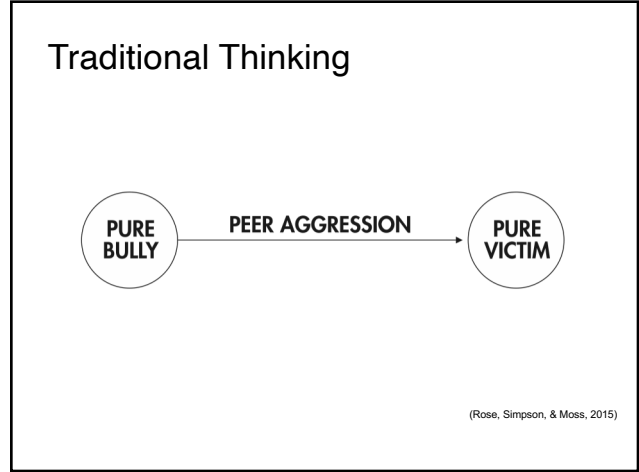

Educational outcomes can include academic deficits, poor academic outcomes, low levels of school engagement, and increased absenteeism.

Establishing Bully Prevention Action Plan – Preliminary Questions for Staff and Adult Stakeholders

- Are subgroups of students at higher risk for bullying?
- Where do staff feel students should/could seek help?
- What strategies are most successful in bully prevention?
- Are students aware of reporting procedures?
- Are staff aware of district/school policy and procedures?
- What are the parent perceptions of bully prevention efforts?

Establishing a Pattern – Teacher Interviews

Brief Teacher Interview

Name of Interviewer: _____ Date: _____
 Name of Teacher Being Interviewed: _____ Subject: _____
 Student Name: _____
 Individual who was allegedly victimized Individual who allegedly engaged in bullying

Student Strengths	Areas Targeted for Improvement

For the questions below, compare how the student is performing at this time, compared to the beginning of the year.

How is the student performing academically? _____

How is the student performing socially? _____

How are the students functional skills? _____

How are the students communication skills? _____

How is the student interacting with his/her peers? _____

Describe any changes in the student's behaviors. _____

Describe any areas of concern. _____

When necessary, Teacher Interviews Can be Conducted

This Interview Protocol is Designed to Establish a Pattern or Discern Changes Over Time

Investigation Decision Making Sheet

Name(s) of Bully Prevention Task Force member(s): _____

Name of individual who engaged in bullying behavior: _____

Name of individual who was victimized: _____

Was there an imbalance of power between the individuals involved? Yes No
Describe: _____

Did the individual who engaged in bullying behavior have intent to cause physical, emotional, or social harm? Yes No
Describe: _____

Is this a repeated pattern, or without intervention likely to be repeated for the individual who engaged in bullying behavior? Yes No
Describe: _____

Is this a repeated pattern, or without intervention likely to be repeated for the individual who was victimized? Yes No
Describe: _____

Based on information, did the Bully Prevention Task Force determine this incident was considered bullying? Yes No
Describe: _____

Next Steps for individual who was victimized:
 Communication and collaboration with parents
 Social skills instruction
 Functional Behavior Assessment
 Communication skills instruction
 Meet with school counselor, social worker, psychologist, etc.
 Increased support by school staff
