

Aligning Health Education and Literacy

Description:

Are issues such as teasing, rumors, low physical activity or poor hygiene, impacting the productivity of your elementary-level classroom? There is growing scholarly evidence that social and emotional learning initiatives can have a significant impact on classroom productivity and academic performance.

Join us for a session of Aligning Health Education and Literacy; Storybooks will be used to teach health education content and skills in addition to addressing the common core standards for English Language Arts. Using literature to combine health skill development and reading makes better use of limited instruction time and helps districts meet the weekly health education requirement for elementary classrooms.

Attendees will receive the document Using Literature to Teach Health, health education posters for use in the classroom and numerous storybooks for immediate implementation.

Audience: Elementary classroom teachers, Reading Specialists, Library Media Specialists, and Anyone interested in health literacy at the elementary level.

April 27th

Crowne Plaza
4402 East Washington Avenue
Madison
<http://www.cpmadisonhotel.com/>

Fee: $50-includes morning refreshments, lunch, and materials, including storybooks

Decision Making

Health Education Standard 5 Students will demonstrate the ability to use decision-making skills to enhance health.

TIPS ▶

- ▶ Show all the steps of the decision-making process.
- ▶ Identify the decision to be made.
- ▶ Identify options and possible consequences.
- ▶ State the decision clearly.
- ▶ Evaluate and reflect on the decision.

DM

Presenter:

Dr. Cristy Jefson – University of Wisconsin-Whitewater

Attendance is limited to 30 people / session, so please register early. To register go to:

<http://www.regonline.com/Register/Checkin.aspx?EventID=1076084>

Check-in on day of class begins at 8:00 am

Class runs from 8:30 am -3:30 pm

For questions about registration, please contact Linda Piefer at linda.piefer@dpi.wi.gov (608)-264-9548

For training content questions, please contact Emily Holder at emily.holder@dpi.wi.gov or (608) 267-9170.

This class is brought to you by the Department of Public Instruction.

This program is funded by the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention Division of Adolescent and School Health.